EXHIBIT GUIDELINES.

1.) EXHIBITS CANNOT BE SHIPPED: Exhibitors should not plan to ship any part of their exhibits either to the Cannon House Office Building (the shipment will not be accepted by the U.S. Capitol Police) or to our office (we lack the ability to transport anything to the exhibit hall). When several exhibitors have tried doing this in the past, their exhibit materials were not delivered.

Please plan to bring your entire exhibit with you.

2.) THERE IS NO EXHIBIT MANAGEMENT FIRM: We are not working with any firm to which you can ship your exhibit in advance or make arrangements with to set up your exhibit. We have used such firms in the past but have found that tightened security procedures at the U.S. Capitol made it very difficult for such firms to get into the exhibit hall and to set up exhibits in a timely manner.

Again, please plan to bring your entire exhibit with you.

3.) YOU CANNOT SET UP THE NIGHT BEFORE: Typically, the Cannon Caucus Room (i.e., the exhibit hall) has events scheduled every day, including in the evenings, so it is not possible to get access the night before the EXPO. Moreover, ever since 9-11, the U.S. Capitol Police have been very wary of allowing unattended boxes, cases, exhibits, etc. to be left in the Caucus room overnight.

4.) PLEASE PLAN TO HAVE YOUR EXHIBIT UP AND READY BY 9:00 AM: The EXPO officially opens at 9:30 am on Tuesday, July 12. We therefore request that all exhibitors ideally be fully set up at least 15 minutes beforehand. The House Cannon Office Building officially opens to the public at 7:30 am. However, we may not have the exhibit hall's floor fully mapped and taped out as well as wired for electricity & set up for internet until about 8:00 am -- so you are welcome to enter the building but you may not be able to access the Caucus Room until about 8:00 am.

5.) PLEASE KEEP YOUR EXHIBIT UP UNTIL 4:30: As was noted on your Registration Form, you have committed to keep your exhibit up until the formal close of the EXPO at 4:30 pm. In the past, some exhibitors have shut down their exhibits early and this has proven to be a significant problem for several reasons. If you cannot comply with this guideline, please let us know and we will refund your registration fee and offer your space to one of the firms on our waiting list.

6.) THERE IS NO FORMAL LUNCH BREAK: There is no formal lunch break during the EXPO and nothing in the form of boxed lunches is being provided. However, there is a snack bar in the Cannon Office Building (on the basement level) as well as several cafeterias in nearby buildings (e.g., the Rayburn House Office Building, the Library of Congress - Madison Building, and the U.S. Capitol Visitors Center) -- all within a block of the Cannon House Office building.

7.) YOU ARE ONLY BEING PROVIDED A SPACE ON THE FLOOR: If you have reserved a booth "space" you will be allocated a section of the exhibit hall floor that measures 10' x 4'. If you have reserved a "table" space, you will be given a space that measures 8' x 4'. The individual spaces are not separated by any form of wall or post-and-drapes.

The majority of the spaces are in the center of the exhibit hall and therefore not alongside a real wall. Those spaces which are along an actual wall do not lend themselves to having anything hung from the walls (there are windows, drapes, or chandeliers that preclude this). The Caucus Room has a very high ceiling (at least 25' high) so it is not possible to hang anything from the ceiling.

If you have previously requested it, we will be providing exhibitors in the main hall with a table (the size varies from year-to-year but usually they are 6' x 30"), a green table cloth, chairs (1-4), electricity, and wireless internet access. For exhibitors using one of the four "table-top" spaces on the dais, we believe we can get electricity to those sites as well as wireless internet access.

8.) THE DEPTH OF EXHIBIT SPACES IS ONLY FOUR FEET: Although it is the largest meeting room in the U.S. Capitol complex, the Cannon Caucus Room is still a relatively small space into which we are placing nearly 50 exhibitors. We therefore ask that you do your best to keep your exhibit within the confines of the space allocated to you -- in particular, the depth of each booth or table space is only four feet. If you protrude beyond the four-foot limit, your exhibit will narrow the aisles, which themselves are rather narrow.

9.) BUILDING ACCESS IS VERY DIFFICULT: Because the Caucus Room is part of the U.S. Capitol Complex, security measures are very tight and very strict.

Officially, all exhibit materials brought into the Cannon Office Building must be passed through and scanned by one of the table-top x-ray machines placed at all entrances to the building.

The dimensions of the x-ray machine are 18" x 22".

This means that all exhibit materials must be able to somehow fit through the x-ray machine. If you attempt to bring in an exhibit that cannot fit through the machine -- either as a whole unit or in parts -- you may not be allowed to bring it into the building. So, when considering the design of your exhibit, please factor in whether or not it will fit.

UNOFFICIALLY, some exhibitors in the past have been able to bring in larger exhibits that did not fit through the x-ray machines. In some cases, the building guards were willing to check those exhibits using hand-held scanners or just do a visual inspection. In other instances, exhibitors were able to hand-carry exhibit materials (not containing metal) through the metal detectors that visitors must pass through.

However, this is very unofficial and completely subject to the discretion of the guards on duty. Do not depend on being able to do this. If you want to risk this approach, you are advised to use one of the less-congested entrances to the Cannon Office Building. The building has four entrances -- the two on Independence Avenue tend to have the highest traffic. Guards at the other entrances may be a bit less stressed time-wise and therefore more amenable to adjusting the security-clearance procedures. But, again, this is completely discretionary on their part.

10.) UNUSUAL OR POTENTIALLY DANGEROUS EXHIBIT MATERIALS: Any exhibitor contemplating bringing in an exhibit that could raise concerns for the security guards at the entrance is strongly advised to let us know well in advance.

More specifically, if you are thinking of bringing in as part of your exhibit anything that remotely could be seen as being explosive, useable as a weapon, or otherwise potentially dangerous, give us a lot of advance notice.

In the past, exhibits that included any liquids, batteries, fuel cells, motors, electronic devices (other than notebook computers or lights) were of potential concern.

11.) CANCELLATIONS & REFUNDS:

In the past, we have averaged one or two cancellations/year by would-be exhibitors and to address that possibility for this year, we have developed the following cancellation fee schedule.

Any exhibitor who chooses to cancel its registration for the July 12 EXPO can receive a full or partial refund of its registration fee according to the following schedule.

- Now – May 15: full refund
- May 16 - May 31: 2/3 refund
- June 1 - June 20: 1/3 refund
- After June 21: no refund
