The Environmental and Energy Study Institute (EESI) invites you to a briefing to hear from a panel of experts about how federal energy efficiency programs create jobs and deliver direct meaningful savings to constituent homeowners, consumers, and businesses—all while reducing the stresses and strains on our energy system. Making investments in energy efficiency also encourages productive public-private partnerships and collaboration, improves the sustainability and resilience of our communities, and contributes to meaningful, near-term reductions in pollution and greenhouse gas emissions.

Welcome remarks:

- Rep. Marcy Kaptur (D-Ohio)
- Rep. Jeff Fortenberry (R-Neb.)

Speakers for this forum are:

- Vicki Hackett, Deputy Commissioner of Energy, Connecticut Department of Energy and Environmental Protection
- Christopher Hess, Vice President, Eaton
- Arjun Krishnaswami, Policy Analyst, Climate & Clean Energy Program, Natural Resources Defense Council
- Jennifer Schafer-Soderman, Executive Director, Federal Performance Contracting Coalition
- Curtis J. Zimmermann, Ph.D., J.D, Manager, Government Liaison, BASF Corporation

We hope you will join us for this informative briefing. Special thanks to the offices of Reps. Kaptur and Fortenberry for their support for this event.

This event is free and open to the public.
