The Environmental and Energy Study Institute (EESI) invites you to join us for a briefing on what to expect during the upcoming international climate negotiations in Egypt (COP27).

Last year, the global community agreed on the final set of guidelines to implement the Paris Agreement, so this year marks the start of a new era of international cooperation on climate change, focused on implementation. As such, COP27 is set to cover a wide range of topics, including loss and damage, climate finance, and planning for the first global stocktake of each country's progress towards its Paris Agreement goals.

Panelists will unpack the overall process of international climate negotiations, explain the key areas of negotiation expected to be at play at COP27, review possible outcomes, discuss how new U.S. laws impact the path forward, and explore what it all means for Congress.

Speakers for this session include:

- Tracy Bach, Co-Focal Point, UNFCCC Research and Independent NGOs (RINGO)
- Nisha Krishnan, Lead, Climate Resilience, World Resources Institute Africa (WRI)
- Ryan Finnegan, Deputy Manager, U.S. Climate Policy and America Is All In, World Wildlife Fund
- Erin Mayfield, Hodgson Family Assistant Professor of Engineering, Dartmouth College; Co-Principal Investigator, Rapid Energy Policy Evaluation and Analysis Toolkit (REPEAT)

This briefing is part of a Congressional briefing series, What Congress Needs to Know About COP27:

- Key Findings from the Newest Global Assessment Report on Climate Change
