The Environmental and Energy Study Institute (EESI) invites you to a three-part Rapid Readout briefing series about updates from this year's United Nations climate negotiations in Antalya, Türkiye (COP31). Speakers across this series will assess progress made toward climate goals, provide updates on country commitments to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and improve adaptation and resilience, and explain what it all means for U.S. climate policy. The Readouts will also unpack key announcements and commitments and highlight U.S. presence at COP31—including federal, subnational, and private sector roles in the proceedings.

Featured Speakers:

- Lynn Wagner, Senior Director, International Environmental Governance, International Institute for Sustainable Development
- Matti Goldberg, Director of International Policy, Woodwell Climate Research Center
- More speakers to be announced

This event is free and open to the public.
