AGRICULTURAL MANAGEMENT ASSISTANCE (AMA)

Program Description
The Agricultural Management Assistance (AMA) program helps agricultural producers manage financial risk through crop diversification, marketing assistance, and adoption of conservation practices. USDA’s Natural Resources Conservation Service administers the conservation provisions of the program while the Agricultural Marketing Service and Risk Management Agency implement the production diversification and marketing provisions.

Climate Highlights
The AMA program helps agricultural producers adopt conservation practices by covering up to 75 percent of their cost. These conservation practices, such as agroforestry, cover crops, and tillage management, mitigate climate change and build resilience to climate impacts. AMA is available in 16 states where crop insurance rates are low.

Funding
Mandatory funding for AMA is permanently authorized at $10 million for each fiscal year (FY).
